

You'll be receiving a number of identical messages regarding Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to run an smear campaign against Kerry. Let's be very clear that Kerry is not the point, but the fact that a private company is using public airwaves for a television campaign is uncontentionable. In a day and age where our affluent country men are mostly spoon fed their information from a television screen - which sorely, sorely misrepresents and ignores far too much of what is actual in this world of ours - you, yes you my own FCC, will allow profit margins to determine elections, the fate of our nation, the fate of the world along with it? No, I'm not being overdramatic so stop shaking your head.

FOX News just had a scandal where one of their 'journalists' wrote a completely erroneous article - lied, mind you, outright lied - and this was dismissed as an error in judgement, as fatigue. And nothing happens. And I can't stomach it. Perhaps it is just an oath a journalist is to take, but to freely lie in an effort to maintain a system of brutal judgement, ignorance and profit alone is so sad, and is so sickening. And for you, FCC, to allow a whole company to spin and to spin . . . Oh, what propaganda we face each day. And no will to see past it.

You are not doing your job. Know that. Even if you think it's impossible with all the bureaucracy that has blinded us to any color but red, oh, and of course green. Find a way past the money ties and do a better job. Free yourself, FCC. These are public airwaves, and they should not beholden to the interests of the wealthy, and the few. Even if they've already bought you; free yourself. Free us.
